ANCORW'S MISSION STATEMENT

ANCORW is a lobbying, advocacy and research group which works with and for refugee women and their families in order to bring about change in the refugee system and to enhance their ability to rebuild their lives.

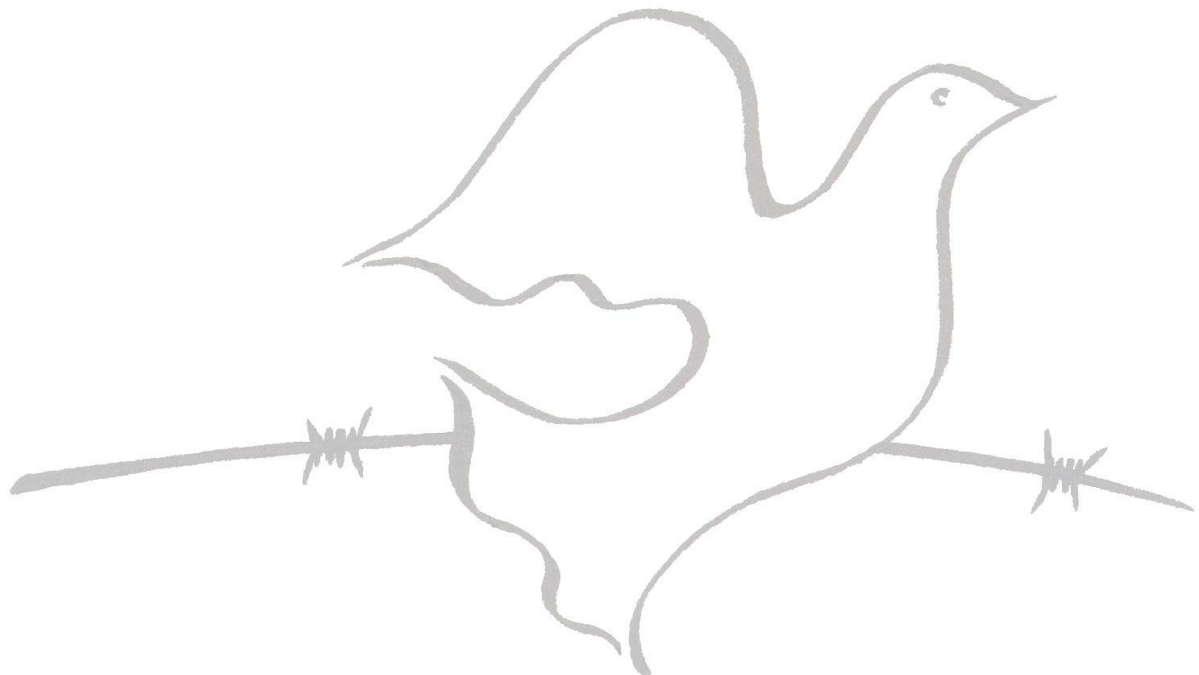

ANCORW regards refugee issues as human rights issues. Empowerment and the full achievement of all human rights for refugee women and their children are equally as important as protection.

At the national level, ANCORW, lobbies for changes in domestic law, social policy and for improved service provision.

At an International level, ANCORW lobbies at the United Nations for changes in International law, including United Nations Declarations.

ANCORW is committed to undertaking research into issues which adversely affect the lives of refugee women and their dependent children and to use this research to lobby for change.

ANCORW is committed to empower refugee women to have control over their own lives and to advocate on their own behalf through the provision of advocacy training and by providing opportunities for refugee women to participate in national and international forums.

ANCORW'S BOARD MEMBERS

Tabitha Chepkwony - chairperson

Tabitha was born in Kenya and currently works as the Community Integration Coordinator at Settlement Services International. She is a Member of the African Ministerial Consultative Committee in Australia and is the Director of TAABCO Research and Development Consultants, a research and development consulting resource organization whose main aim is to strengthen civil society organizations to be visible, vibrant and sustainable actors in socio-economic development and poverty alleviation.

(http://www.taabco.org/html/about\_us.htm)

Tabitha has a Masters of Peace and Conflict Studies from the University of Sydney and also Masters in International Development from UNSW.

Najeeba Wazefadost – Deputy Chairperson

Since arriving in Australia as a refugee from Afghanistan Najeeba Wazefadost has graduated from a Bachelor of Medical Science at the University of Western Sydney and is now studying a second degree at the University of Technology Sydney.

Najeeba has been involved in a number of organisations such as ChilOut (Children Out of Detention), Amnesty International, and is currently acting as the president of Hazara Women of Australia, advocating for rights of refugee women and newly arrived migrants with their settlement. In 2010 Najeeba was a finalist of the Young Human Rights Medal Award, in 2011 she won the Young Woman of the West Award and last year she won a UTS Human Rights Award for her work in not-for-profit organisations and volunteer work. In 2013, Najeeba was one of six finalists for the 2013 NSW Premier's Woman of the Year Award. She was named as the Young Citizen of the Year 2014 by the Auburn City Council for the Australia Day celebrations.

Najeeba is a sought after public speaker, regularly visiting universities, schools, churches and colleges across the country. Her short story, 'Surrealistic Nightmares' won an award and was published in the short story collection 'There's No Place like Home'. She has also been a panelist on ABC TV's 'Q&A' show and appears on numerous public forums.

Najeeba is currently working as a case manager with new arrivals and refugees for SSI (Settlement Services International), and also has established her own business.

CHAIRPERSON'S REPORT

Tabitha Chepkwony ANCORW Chair

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to ANCORW 2017 Annual General Meeting. Today I would like to share with you the work undertaken by the Board and our members in the year 2017, highlighting our achievements and signalling our future plans. At the end of my report, I am more than happy to take any questions from the floor.

Membership and Governance

ANCORW's membership has continued to grow and we have over 120 active members nationally.

In the year 2017 the board meet more than 4 times and took advantage of teleconferencing.

ANCORW has membership with RCOA and APR

Representation at Geneva

ANCORW representatives attended the Geneva June 2017 UNHCR Annual NGO Consultations and were able to advocate on the issues of refugee youth, detention, self – representation, women and girls as well as networking.

ANCORW in partnership with University of UNSW was recognised in Geneva for its work and booklet on global compact.

Funding Applications

This year ANCORW has applied for funding to DSS through Refugee Council of Australia (RCOA) and also in partnership with UNSW applied for funding through Australia Research Centre –with the theme of Protecting refugee women and girls from sexual violence: Informing international law and policy

Consultations

This year ANCORW participated in three consultations all aimed at ensuring advocacy of refugee women and girls.

Stakeholder Engagement

ANCORW has been engaged in various stakeholder engagements and participations with Government departments for instance Australian Department of Immigration and Border Protection (DIBP) , Department of Trade and Foreign Affairs, Local councils, Local NGOs and International NGOs.

INTERNATIONAL ACTIVITIES

UNHCR Annual Consultations Geneva, June 2017

Meetings held in Geneva this year were overwhelmingly dominated by discussions about the draft Comprehensive Refugee Response Framework and Global Compact on Refugees. The process leading up to a Global Compact on Refugees began with states—including Australia—signing the New York Declaration for Refugees and Migrants (New York Declaration) on 19 September 2016. States signing this declaration, among a multitude of other commitments: reaffirmed the importance of adhering to the international protection regime (the 1951 Refugee Convention and 1967 Protocol, as well as international human rights law and international humanitarian law); committed to wider avenues for refugees to be admitted to third countries; pledged to support comprehensive refugee responses for large-scale refugee movements; and committed to working towards the adoption of a Global Compact on refugees.

ANCORW’s Board members Najeeba Wazefadost, Tabitha Chepkwony and Tenneh Kpaka joined other NGO representatives in Geneva, for a range of meetings and advocacy opportunities with UNHCR. ANCORW is grateful to Refugee Council of Australia for providing the funding that enabled ANCORW board members to attend consultations.

Refugee Self- Representation - Nothing About us without us”

ANCORW was able to advocate on the issue refugee self-representation with other Australian NGOs in Geneva. The message in this session is that Refugees themselves must be involved in shaping the policies that affect their lives if there is to be a sustainable solution to the refugee crisis.

The following were recommendations from ANCORW, RCOA and other Australian NGO’s that were present in Geneva

1. Refugees do not want to be seen as beneficiaries or as a burden. While the New York Declaration makes explicit reference to the participation of refugees in the development of the CRRF as one of the stakeholders that needed to be engaged in the process, it is hard to see how this is happening. For example, if we look around this room we can guess that there are very few people who are here speaking about effective refugee responses from the perspective of having lived as a refugee.

What are the ways that we can create stronger mechanisms for enabling meaningful and effective refugee self-representation at forums such as these, so that people who can speak from lived experience have a say in the development of this Global Compact?

2. In the CRRF, the important role and contributions of local host communities is rightly acknowledged, but there is no acknowledgement of the role and contribution of refugee or refugee diaspora communities. We know that when people first flee, they draw heavily on their own resources and on the support and care of their families and community members, both near and far. In fact, this support is what sustains many refugees in many different situations, even in protracted situations.

Is there any consideration being given to how the important support structures within refugee communities can both be acknowledged and strengthened in the CRRF?

3. There are many examples around the world where refugees have created their own support structures in the absence of adequate international protection and humanitarian assistance. In Indonesia, for example, the refugee community outside Jakarta has built a number of community learning centres that are led and run by refugees themselves. They have done this by drawing on their own resources and with the support of civil society allies in other countries.

Meeting with the African Bureau:

ANCORW in partnership with other Australian NGOs were able to meet UNHCR officials from the African Bureau team and raised the following issues

1. The need to engage Africa diaspora communities and have a partnership agreement with UNHCR and become partners.
2. Resettlement of African refugees. It was noted that Australia in particular has resettled very few refugees from Africa.
3. There are many orphans and women in African refugee camps that need urgent attention

UNHCR officials agreed that there is an issue with youth in Africa and they urge Australian Advocacy groups and diaspora to support education programs in Africa.

UNHCR Women and Girls Sessions.

The sessions on Women and girls at risk we had Eileen Pittaway and Linda Bartolomei from the University of NSW from ANCORW – Tabitha Chepkwony, Najeeba Wazefadost and Tenneh Kpaka raising issues about women and girls in Geneva. This core group were involved in separate meetings with different senior UNHCR representatives, Geneva-based NGOs and representatives from the OHCHR working groups focused on women and girls. They developed and presented an extremely detailed analysis of the CRRF and how the Program of Action can ensure that the needs of women and girls at risk are well represented. Their work was commended publicly by Assistant High Commissioner Volker Türk in the opening plenary at the UNHCR NGO Consultations, and an invitation has been extended for representatives from UNSW and ANCORW to be involved in future discussions on the Global Compact and CRRF, including the High Commissioner’s Dialogue to be held in Geneva in December. Tenneh Kpaka from ANCORW was invited as a panellist at the session on 'Women and girls in the Global Compact' at the NGO Consultations.

DOMESTIC ACTIVITIES

ANCORW's Western Sydney base

ANCORW continues to enjoy the support of Cumberland Council, including through the use of one the Regent's Park Hub as ANCORW's office and meeting base. ANCORW has used this facility for board meetings, and as our office location and storage. The lease of the Regents Park Hub also means that ANCORW is able to request to use other local government facilities in this area, including Auburn Centre for Community. This has enabled ANCORW to expand its delivery of advocacy and training services to refugee women.

ANCORW active Participation at Refugee Alternatives: Theme: Refugee Women Fight for Justice: Advocacy from the grassroots to the United Nations (UN) – February 2017

Refugee Women representation at a conference in UNSW hosted by UNSW and Refugee council of Australia (RCOA). ANCORW members shared lived experience of refugee women across the globe.

The workshop was a success and had the following recommendations:

Increase intake for Women at Risk Visa (Subclass 204)<sup>7</sup> - Australian Government should increase intake for the Women at Risk Visa and provide additional funding, service provision for women at risk when resettled in Australia.

Shared responsibility for inclusion - Commitment to continually bringing in diverse voices of women with varied experiences of displacement, forced migration and settlement. Along with this responsibility, comes the need for women to mentor one another to strengthen their advocacy.

Aid the healing process - provide services that will help women bond with their children after the trauma related to the refugee experience.

Training for stakeholders - services should better support and ensure protection for women at risk by providing training for government department workers, healthcare workers, police force, and others to better understand domestic violence, identify women who are at risk and treat them with respect, and prompt further action. <sup>6</sup> ANCORW- a lobbying, advocacy and research group which works with and for refugee women and their families in order to bring about change in the refugee system and to enhance their ability to rebuild their lives. <sup>7</sup> Woman at Risk Visa (Subclass 204)- for female applicants and their dependents who are subject to persecution or are of concern to UNHCR, are living outside their home country without the protection of a male relative and are in danger of victimisation, harassment or serious abuse because of their gender. Regional Recommendations

Strengthen unity and solidarity - solidify leadership positions for women, through regional communication between Australia and neighbouring countries. • Self-advocacy training - Support is required to make advocacy and leadership effective. Refugee women need access training materials to advocate for themselves; how to be confident, articulate and persuasive; how to reach the target audience, provide more platforms and leadership positions for refugee women to have a political impact. • Mentoring - create space for refugee women be mentors to other refugee women to build their capacity.

International Recommendations

More efficient system for immediate assessment - UNHCR to develop a practical procedure and documentation of women at risk, in refugee camps and urban settings. • Broadened definition of 'women at risk' - the current definition needs to include women in relationships, who are currently excluded from women at risk category, and may be at risk you have a man or partner you can still be at risk.

Specialised support for refugee women - develop specialised care teams in host countries who are gender-sensitive; provide women-specific orientation sessions for new refugees; provide appropriate accommodation for women, and women at risk in particular. • Regular and meaningful consultation - conduct regular consultations, and safe spaces for refugee women to assess the quality and quantity of services they interact with, to build a stronger evidence base of conditions for women in refugee camps, in flight and during settlement.

End to impunity - Take the perpetrators of rape in war-torn countries to human rights court, as they are systematically raping countless women and girls under the cover of war, with no repercussions. • Forgotten refugees - in the midst of the increasing Syrian refugees, take measures to increase intake of refugee women from elsewhere who have been waiting many years to get to safety, such as those from African nations. • Improved conditions for women in refugee camps - additional funding is needed for women to be supplied with extra food provisions, sanitary materials and primary health care to avoid sexual exploitation and forced survival sex.

Newly Arrived Refugees Elderly consultation – February 2017

In February 2017 SSI allowed ANCORW to hold consultation with over newly arrived elderly refugees from Syria and Iraq. Consultation were divided into three group discussions mainly couples, single men and single women respectively. Common themes from the group discussions centre around accommodation, language, employment and health issues. The participants mainly spoke in Arabic but the English version (as interpreted by the Bilingual workers) of the feedback from the groups are

Women's Workshop and Consultation on Global Compact 13th June , 2017.

This consultation was in partnership with University of New South Wales (UNSW) and explored recommendations of women and girls in the lead up to the global compact requested by RCOA and UNHCR.

The following issues were raised by women and girls that could inform and be addressed the global compact.

- Individual Interviewing – refugee interviews need to be split between men and women and opportunity for women to be interviewed on their own as women need to address the issues of rape and abuse
- UNHCR to have gender sensitive staff
- Global Compact to address the issue of survival sex and sex trafficking
- Global compact to include meaningful engagement for young people
- Global compact to address the issue of LGBTQI
- Provide refugee women mentorship
- Domestic Violence support
- Identification of women at risk in resettlement
- UNHCR regular consultation with refugee women
- Sexual Health report
- Global compact to address Intergenerational Trauma Services
- Education options and support

Department of Immigration and Border Protection – NGO Dialogue - 16th November 2017

ANCORW representative participated on the 16th November 2017
